What is the evidence of AVID's impact in classrooms?

“Established AVID Australia schools are more than twice as likely (2.6x) to outperform in all three core NAPLAN domains as comparable schools ($p \sim 0.023$).”

Goss (2025; 2026) positions AVID among the most effective school improvement approaches in Australia, demonstrating significant and sustained gains in both teaching quality and student outcomes for AVID schools compared to similar schools. Goss found these are not isolated results — they are sustained, scalable improvements across diverse contexts, including regional, metropolitan, and disadvantaged schools.

Student Achievement

Decades of Australian and United States data shows that AVID students achieve significantly higher academic results compared to non-AVID students.

Empowering Teachers and Community

Teachers are empowered to use rigorous, explicit, high-engagement teaching and learning strategies that consistently engage students socially, emotionally and academically. AVID builds deep, respectful, enduring relationships between educators, their students and their families.
